Another Job for Local Service Clubs

THE ROAD maps show the highway distance from Abbotsford to Vancouver via Mission as 49 miles—exactly five miles further than via the Interprovincial Highway. Estimating automobile operation cost at five cents a mile, the New Westminster bridge now becomes, with its single-ticket toll of twenty-five cents each way, an offset in driving cost over the north shore highway.

Which calculation, made amid the tumult of protest in this valley just now against the toll, bares an opportunity for service clubs and trade boards on both sides of the international boundary to do some useful spade work this winter, with an eye to tourist traffic rewards next summer and summers after.

Why not, the question arises, take a leaf from the book of wide-awake communities in San Francisco Bay region and other places, which, by use of large signs and other publicity media, succeed in diverting enormous traffic streams through their business areas? "See the scenic Fraser Valley and Save Bridge Tolls" should be a most arresting suggestion if prominently placarded in Bellingham and Vancouver, for instance. And much could be made of the attractions of new scenery available along the Fraser River over "the loup" Valley route—a feature that might profitably be emphasized in the cities of New Westminster and Vancouver.

Here is something worthy of the attention of the several communities affected—Sumas, Nooksack, Everson on the U.S. side, and Abbotsford, Mission, Haney, Hammond and Port Coquitlam on this side of the border. A concerted plan should be agreed upon by each of these centres to take advantage of their mutual opportunities.

The Port of Huntingdon—"Gateway to the Fraser Valley, and, for U.S. visitors, to the Cariboo"—cleared 6,718 incoming U.S. cars and 10,110 incoming Canadian cars in the months July, August and September. Staffed by six customs officers and three immigration officers, the local port has never had a traffic congestion, and is able, if necessary, to clear traffic at over 100 cars each hour. The Pacific Highway chief port is called upon to handle four times the traffic volume of Huntingdon, and the congestion there upon holidays is not only an inconvenience but at times a menace to public safety. Accordingly it is in the public interest to divert some of that traffic through another port.

But, as with every project requiring change of human habit, there is immediate educational work to be done—the public, particularly the motorists' associations, must be sold on the "Fraser Valley loup drive." One factor to be contended with is the border system of permits for motorists, who are permitted to return to their own country only through the port from which they embarked. A Canadian motorist preferring to drive over to Bellingham via Blaine and return via Huntingdon must fill in the complete entry form for tourists. Then he must remember that while the Canadian border offices at Pacific Highway remain open all night, the U.S. office closes at 1 a.m. and those at Huntingdon-Sumas at 12 p.m. And, he should be told to take plenty of time driving over the delightful stretch of highway connecting Clayburn and Abbotsford.

Once established in public favor, however, the loup trip will become increasingly popular, and contribute much towards closer commercial and social liaison between Canadian motorists and their own communities in the Fraser Valley.

Sumas Lions Club and Abbotsford Board of Trade are the logical bodies to initiate this movement, and are in a position to effectively enlist the co-operation of representative groups in other affected localities.

Poplar Lads Guests of Large Farm Machinery Firm at Hamilton

In company with 60 other winners of their own respective Farm Clubs throughout the Dominion of Canada, Bob Hazlett and Ray Green, attending the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, and were guests of International Harvester Co. at Hamilton. There they were shown how farm implements and binder twine are manufactured.

This picture was taken immediately following their tour through the two large plants. The two local boys are to be seen ninth and tenth from the left on the third row, standing.

Thirteenth on the same row is Bruce Richardson of Sardis and seventeenth is Don Richardson of Atcheltz, B.C.

At a luncheon in the Company cafeteria, the boys heard on address by A. E. MacLaurin, general secretary of the Canadian Council of Boys' and Girls' Club, who spoke on the work of the clubs, made possible by a fund to which the Harvester Company contributed generously, to teach better methods to the 35,000 young farmers who now belong to the Farm Clubs.

Cut In Power Rate Effective Jan. 1st

"One cent electricity" will be made available to residents of North and West Vancouver, Burnaby and the Fraser Valley on and after January 1, the B.C. Electric Railway company announces, in making public details of an important rate reduction for these areas. The change involves the addition of a third step in the company's rate schedules to provide customers with a portion of their electric current at a charge of 1 cent per kilowatt hour.

The present schedule of rates in these districts has only two graduations. The first rate is five cents per kilowatt hour, charged on the first 30 kilowatt hours of current consumed in a house of 1,000 square feet or less in floor area. If the floor area is in excess of this figure the number of hours on this step is graduated slightly higher. At present all current over the first step is charged at 2 cents per kilowatt hour.

Under the new schedule only 200 kilowatt hours will be charged at

Huntingdon P.T.A. Meet

At a well-attended meeting of the Huntingdon P.T.A., arrangements were made to provide treats for the children at the annual Christmas concert, to be held in the school on the evening of December 16. Drawing for the winning tickets in the raffle for a turkey, cake and pudding donated by Mr. Greyell, Mrs. Crouter and Mrs. Waterston will take place at the concert. Each member agreed to donate one card table cover, these to be brought to the next meeting. The session closed with a contest.

2 cents, and all additional energy at 1 cent per kilowatt hour.

The first step of these rates cares for the major portion, if not all the current used in home lighting, leaving charges for cooking, heating and major electrical appliances to come under the low second and third steps.

In rural areas this results in the farmer securing particularly cheap power for the performance of the many tasks that may be done on the farm by electricity.

"But It Isn't Cheaper to get it in the City!"

...Mrs. Housewife...you're Right!

A BIG Store Doesn't Always Mean a SMALL Price!

You quite often pay a big price at a big store. Here's an actual incident—a local resident purchased a brush-wool sweater in Vancouver. Attractively displayed, featured as though it were a bargain at the price. On arriving back in Abbotsford, this resident saw AN EXACTLY SIMILAR SWEATER, placed inconspicuously in a local merchant's window—AT SEVENTY CENTS LESS! This is an actual fact, and this same experience applies not only to clothing but to footwear, hardware and nearly every line. Ranges are sold to you cheaper in Abbotsford than they are in Vancouver. Grapes are being sold in the local grocery stores at a cent a pound less than they are in elaborately displayed city Oriental stores (reputedly "so cheap").

The Trip Into Town, PLUS TOLLS, Costs Money!

You people who make a habit of doing your shopping in the city, particularly at Christmas time, should not forget that you can't travel almost a hundred miles, pay tolls both ways over the new bridge, without it costing you several dollars. In addition, there's the jostling, pushing and the struggling in crowded city stores, parking problems—AND impersonal service. It doesn't do you much good when you arrive back home and find your purchases were not what you wanted. You can't just walk down town and get "Tom" or "Dick" or "Harry" to change it for you.

And Local Store Prices Are at Rock-Bottom, Anyway!

Competition is too keen these days for the local merchant to try and "soak" you. He has to, and does, meet competitive prices. How?—Low rents for one thing; shrewd buying for another—the lowly rural merchant's dollar is just as big to the wholesaler, since the depression, as the large buyers. Talk to your local storekeeper about city prices. He'll PROVE to you that it is not cheaper for the rural resident to go to the city to do shopping. He honestly advertises most of his prices for your comparison because he knows they are as low as possible!

Seeding From The Skies

Intriguing to the farmers of the prairie provinces, to say the least, is the information that in Soviet Russia grain and grass seed is being planted at the rate of 400 acres an hour by the use of aeroplanes and still more alluring is the suggestion that this method could "easily be used" to seed the broad fields of the wide open spaces in Western Canada.

Both information and suggestion were promulgated by J. A. Stiles, O.B.E., Executive Commissioner of the Boy Scouts in Canada and former Dean of Applied Science at the University of Fredericton, New Brunswick, at a recent luncheon meeting in Regina. He volunteered the additional information that this method of seeding grain as adopted in Russia has the advantage of making it possible to seed fields covered with snow or mired after rains.

While credence must be given to the Dean's statement that this practice has been, or is being, adopted in Russia, a good deal more information as to the conditions under which this operation is carried out and the results achieved therefrom before due weight could be given to his correlated suggestion that the Canadian west lends itself to this method of seeding grain, principally because of the flatness of the country "landings could be made easily."

On the face of it there must necessarily be many factors, other than ease of landing, before this system of seeding could be pronounced a feasible plan for the Western Canadian farmer as a general thing.

For instance, it would be interesting to know whether in Russia the method has been adopted only in one or two isolated instances where special circumstances and conditions conspired to make it a feasibility, economic and otherwise as, for example, on one of those large collectivist farms where the area is measured in square miles rather than in acres, and whether even on these huge farms the method is only in an experimental stage or was used as an emergency measure to speed up production in accord with a government quota.

It would be interesting, too, to know the results of the work carried on in Russia with an aeroplane travelling perhaps at 100 miles an hour or more blasting seed over the countryside in large quantities. Is it possible to broadcast seed in this manner from the fast travelling motor-propelled vehicle somewhere between earth and clouds without wasting large quantities of seed? Can grain seeded this way be distributed thinly and evenly as it can be by a horse-drawn or even a tractor-drawn drill?

These are some of the questions the Western Canadian farmer would like to have answered before he would be prepared to nod acquiescence to the good Dean's suggestion that such a method could easily be applied in this country.

And even if these questions were answered favorably to the plan and to the satisfaction of the interrogator, there are others which would have to be answered satisfactorily before the Western Canadian farmer could be expected to warmly espouse the Dean's somewhat novel suggestion.

It is obvious, for instance, that the average three quarter section or section farmer could not afford to purchase an aeroplane to seed his crop, for that would be the only agricultural operation for which it could be used, except perhaps to spray the fields with insecticide or poison bait. The cost would be prohibitive in proportion to the return, no matter how good the yield and how high the price of grain. If it is to be adopted, therefore, it would have to be a custom proposition, if the average farmer is to be able to avail himself of this method of seeding.

If, therefore, such a system of seeding is to be adopted, to be of benefit to the average farmer it would either necessitate its operation by a large number of farmers on a co-operative basis or by some private individual or corporation willing to run the risk of making what must necessarily be a substantial investment remunerative. If the latter, it might necessitate a charge for seeding out of proportion to the benefits derived from fast seeding when conditions are ideal for germination of seed scattered from the skies.

There are, of course, advantages which could be credited to the seeding of grain fields by aeroplane. The speed with which it could be done and the large acreage which could be covered in a few hours would make it possible to put in a lot of crop when soil and moisture conditions are most receptive for the seed, but the factors in query and perhaps others would have to be first answered favorably before such a method could become general practice in Western Canadian grain fields.

It is predictable that a great deal more information will have to be secured on this subject before the farmers of this country will take the chance of adopting Mr. Stiles' proposal.

Will Visit Provinces

So much of this Coronation year has been spent by the King in London that next year will be more or less devoted to the provinces. Tentative arrangements have been made for His Majesty to visit Nottinghamshire and Lancashire, probably in the spring, though no dates have been fixed, reports the Daily Sketch. There will also be a visit to the Duchy of Cornwall.

Enough For Superstitious

Your Big Opportunity

Every man gets his chance some time, but too many throw it away for a bauble. Because it's connected with a hard and tedious job it's not always recognized. The thing that's next you is most likely your big opportunity.

Men can be divided into three classes:

Freedom Of Speech

Sir Edward Beatty Makes Appeal Before Students At Queen's University

Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and chancellor of McGill University, told a convocation gathering at Queen's University that "I am appealing for freedom of thought and speech, but within the limits of accurate knowledge, sound logic, a sense of responsibility and the ordinary amenities of public life in a civilized community."

Principal speaker at the convocation, Sir Edward was recipient of an honorary LL.D. degree. He recalled his appointment as chancellor of Queen's in 1919 and the fact he was chancellor of both Queen's and McGill from 1921 to 1923.

University heads had been charged with attempting to limit freedom of speech and repressing liberty of thought, Sir Edward asserted in discussing the subject which formed the main part of his address. Nothing could be more untrue than the charges, he said.

"I have myself said, and I shall say again, that liberty of speech and thought are sacred, and nowhere is this truth more important than in the life of our universities," he continued. But Sir Edward contended there were limits within which these liberties may be exercised.

"It is equally foolish and equally wrong to proceed on the assumption that this freedom and these liberties do not carry with them the obligation of seeing that they are not destroyed by the intemperance and irresponsibility of us as individuals."

South Seas Mystery

Island Found Deserted Was Prolific Source Of Guano

The schooner Denys ran into a moldy South Seas mystery recently on a visit to Malden Island, 1,500 miles south of Hawaii.

Malden, a prolific source of guano which reputedly brought fortune to a canny but wandering sea captain, was found deserted under what looked like unusual circumstances.

The captain of the Denys reported finding large warehouses filled with merchandise of every description, and numerous indications of a hurried departure by persons who supposedly had been harvesting wealth in the guano trade.

Malden was discovered in 1848 by an American whaling captain. He noted the wealth of guano and decided to return and exploit it.

In the meantime another whaling boat came along. Her captain got the same idea but instead of delaying, threw his whaling plans overboard, sailed for Sydney and sold his discovery there for a comfortable sum of money.

The purchasing company worked the island for decades and was said to have amassed a great fortune.

But the Denys found Malden inhabited only by pigs and sea birds. That's all anyone knows.

Boy Overcoming Handicap

Brave Lad Lost Both Arms In Accident Seven Years Ago

Wiarion, Ontario, has a 14-year-old boy who plays football, umpires baseball is skilled at drawing, writes well, rides a bicycle and has his share of fun. Nothing unusual about that. But in this case the boy is Bert Rouse who lost both his arms as the result of an accident seven years ago.

"They can who think they can" is the motto Bert holds before himself. It was inscribed in a book written by W. R. Watson, business man who lost his arms early in life, and who sent Bert a copy of the work. When Bert was seven years old he grabbed wires carrying 6,000 volts while playing on a roof. Amputation of both arms was necessary.

Bert still has trouble eating and dressing but he thinks he soon will have mastered these arts. He writes and draws with a pencil held in his teeth. He even goes fishing, holding the pole between his chin and the side of his neck.

He has confidence in the future, and intends to make his own way. "Something will open up by the time I leave school," he said. "I know it will."

"I don't need one. At thirty miles an hour the lamps clatter; at forty the wings rattle; at fifty the whole car shakes; and if I go any quicker than that my teeth chatter."

Streets Of Gold

Unique Tourist Attraction Is Furnished By Dawson City

Dawson City, Yukon Territory, boasts a unique and somewhat startling tourist attraction. Streets of gold! After the recovery of the main gold content of gravel originally washed down from high levels above the Klondike Valley by a process of hydraulic operations, hundreds of tons of waste or "tailings" in which a trace of gold still remains were used to grade the roads in and around the town. Of course, the actual gold content remaining is exceedingly small, but nevertheless the streets of Dawson are literally paved with gold.

Now a town of about a thousand souls, Dawson was in the heyday of the famous Klondike gold rush a city of about 40,000 population. The original miners delved for gold with picks and shovels and washed out their "pay dirt" in rockers or sluices. To-day huge hydraulic dredges are in operation in the Klondike area and the salvage of gold has become a fine art. The variety of odds and ends picked up by these mammoth machines includes large quantities of bird shot, bullets, cartridges, odd pieces of metal, in addition to the occasional watch, ring, knife, and guns of all sizes and shapes. At one time all this junk was simply thrown away, but a few years ago an engineer in charge of the recovery process in an experimental mood decided to treat several hundred pounds of bullets, shot and small pieces of metal. As a result of this experiment pure gold worth several hundred dollars was recovered, and now all bullets, shells, and bits of metal are carefully salvaged and treated to extract every last bit of wealth.

In common with other cities and towns Dawson has its parking and traffic problems. Scores of cars and trucks of all sorts clutter up the streets and trails at all hours. Many of the famous "creeks" in the Klondike gold fields can be reached by motor car over a network of excellent roads.

A Troopship De Luxe

British Soldiers Will Enjoy Liner Comforts On New Boat

British soldiers sent to distant stations in the Empire or on foreign service who are fortunate enough to be carried on the troopship Dunera will travel in comfort luxurious for such vessels.

The vessel, of 11,160 tons, has been built for the British India Steam Navigation Company at a cost of $2,500,000 and has just completed her trial trips on the Clyde.

The cabins are actually larger than the staterooms in many big liners. The vessel is completely equipped with a system of ventilation which is in use in the majority of the finest liners afloat. The troops' quarters are light and airy, the public rooms in the first-class are luxuriously furnished, and accommodation in the family quarters includes a food-preparing room for parents with children, special ironing rooms and three-berth rooms in which are sofas convertible into cots for children.

Every cabin in the ship has a porthole, and every bathroom has a fan and a shower bath.

The Dunera will probably be engaged in the passenger cruising service when not required for transport purposes.

A Statue Of Livingstone

Has Found A Permanent Home In Southern Rhodesia

The life-sized marble statue of David Livingstone which for some years was housed at the Glasgow University and was last year shipped to Southern Rhodesia, has found a permanent home in the courtyard of the new Government offices which are being built in Salisbury. After a thorough cleaning it will remain clean for all time in the pure Rhodesian air.

The statue shows Livingstone in stride, spurning chains and manacles as the symbols of slavery. The sculptor—and by the way his name is something of a mystery—shows Livingstone's many interests by putting a bundle of papers in his left hand, and a sextant in his right, while a Bible peeps out of his pocket.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Alice Stevens' Recipes

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO HANG PICTURES IN YOUR HOME?

Do you have to look up at the pictures in your living-room? If you do, they are not hung correctly. The centre of the picture should be on a level with the eye, so that the picture can be seen to proper advantage. The centre of the pictures on the same wall, should be in a line rather than the tops or the bottoms.

Do your pictures lie flat against the wall or are they tilted out? They should be flat against the wall, otherwise the picture seems unnatural.

Do you see only the picture or is your attention divided between the wire and the picture? There should not be one wire formed into a V over a hook. There should be two wires used for heavy pictures and for small pictures no wire at all should be seen.

Do your pictures show up against their background or is there too much design in your wall covering? A small quiet design is best for wallpaper.

Do your pictures fit the wall space in which they are hung? A wide picture should not be placed in a small space between two windows.

Do you have too many pictures on your walls? It is much better to avoid overcrowding. Put some of the extra pictures away and get them out later for a change.

Do your pictures express your personality? You are judged by the pictures found in your home. Have you some copies of good prints? Do your pictures express beauty or tell a story?

Woollen Mill Opened

Rural Manitoba Town Establishes A New Industry

An event of more than passing interest, and one that may have important significance in the economic development of the West, took place at Sifton, Man., when the new factory of the Spin-Well Woollen Mills was officially opened by two Manitoba cabinet ministers.

The building is 100 feet long, 40 feet wide, two stories in height, with a concrete boiler room attached. The factory is now fully equipped and is producing wool batts, yarn, men's socks, comforters, sleeping robes, and will be producing blankets shortly. The wool washing and drying equipment is capable of a production of 200 pounds per hour. This large washing and drying capacity is one of considerable interest to farmers as it enables the company to give very quick service on custom work, which is a large part of the business now being done.

The official opening took place on October 14th, the Hon. I. B. Griffith, Minister of Health and Public Welfare, officiating. He was accompanied by the Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Public Works, and the Hon. R. Hawkins, Speaker of the House. The Hon. W. R. Clubb in his remarks complimented the directors on their initiative and enterprise. As he is the minister responsible for the administration of relief, he stated he was extremely gratified to see what had been done in Sifton to create employment and hoped that other points would take notice of this development, as he could see how the problem of unemployment could be solved to a great extent through the establishment of industry using the products of the farm.

Wasted Effort

The canvasser called at the voter's door and was duly invited inside. At once he went into his act.

He praised the candidate. He gave facts and figures. He presented new arguments and old ones, all very reasonable.

The householder listened for an hour or more with rapt attention. Finally, the home-owner raised his hand.

"I'm convinced," he said. "There's no answer to your arguments. I'd vote for the watchdog of the treasury you represent only for one thing."

"What's that, sir?"

"My name is not on the voters' list."

To hatch the egg of a hen, a temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit sustained for a period of three weeks is necessary.

System Is Efficient

Poultry Being Raised Amid Skyscrapers Of New York

City born-and-bred chickens are likely to replace the barnyard variety throughout most of the "built-up" area of the United States. Poultry raising amid the skyscrapers of New York is now being carried on with the full approval of the city's health departments. The fowls are incubated, hatched out, and spend the whole of their lives in small metal containers, and when they fall to lay a profitable number of eggs, they are killed, dressed and marketed all in the same building.

One large New York hotel supplies its dining rooms with broilers and eggs produced in its own plant, situated on the roof.

So efficient and labor-saving is this system that it is claimed that one attendant can care for 15,000 birds. Each hen is housed in a separate small metal box. When she lays an egg it drops into a collecting box.—Armchair Science (London).

Governments Have To Raise Money For Public Services

Nowhere is there any great upsurge of public demand to restrict or reduce services which municipal governments perform. Virtually every municipal body is constantly facing demands for increased services, but there seems never to go with that demand any realization that the cost of such expansion must be met. Frequently, too, original appropriations for new services may be small, but entail commitments for larger expenditures in the future. If tax limits are to be imposed, it seems only equitable that there should be a limit, too, on the number, kind and quality of services a municipality is to furnish.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Long Service Record

Speaking of long service records, here's one to shoot at: At West Norwood, England, a man has completed 67 years as superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School.

In the torrid zone, where the world's heaviest rainfall take place, the new moon always "lies on its back," in the position popularly called the dry moon.

Cotton is cultivated in 19 states of the Union.

I LEARNED TO 'BEAT' ACID INDIGESTION

ONCE LIFE WAS MISERABLE, NO APPETITE... LITTLE SLEEP...UNTIL THE DOCTOR SAID "ALKALIZE"

BUT NOW—AT THE FIRST SIGN OF ACID-INDIGESTION I USE PHILLIPS' AND I FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON ALMOST IMMEDIATELY!

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkali with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonsful of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding," "acid" stomach, "acid breath," "acid" headaches, "acid" breath, "acid" stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

MINAKER—ANDREWS

The wedding took place in Bellingham on Monday, November 29, of Irene, only daughter of Mr. B. Andrews, Abbotsford, to William H. Minaker of Sumas.

In attendance at the wedding were Mrs. O. D. Deeter, sister of the groom, and Russell McPherson of Bellingham.

Mr. Minaker is employed by the Milwaukee railroad, and the young couple plan to make their home in Sumas.

Comments of a B.C. Customs Officer

(Excerpt from The Customs Review)

"The average man would be lost in the maze of detail and procedure that is required of the officers at the small offices. Enquiries are made covering a wide range of subjects, and he must be wary indeed, for mistakes are boomerangs that come sometimes from the least expected quarters. He does not deal with one definite branch of Customs-Excise work, but must of necessity be an appraiser, examining officer, cashier, information desk, and diplomat.

We have a brewery at Princeton, and winery at Kelowna. Our sales tax licenses include manufacturers of candy, canned and prepared fruits and vegetables, job printing, metal fluming, etc., soft drinks, conveyers, brick, prepared meats, cereals, lumber, sash and doors, furnaces, mine maintenance materials and jewellery.

The Collector's daily mail is a mixture running the gamut from the old lady who tells you she wants to make some home brew, to the man who would bring in a circus, and wishes all information. There are letters of enquiry asking for rates of duty and taxes, methods of procedure, sales tax questions, complaints of appraisals, enquiries regarding mail packages, and, of course, the occasional reminder from the Department regarding an error in a duty rate, or a mistake in a report.

The requirements of administrative ability and tact are as necessary, if not more so, in the case of officers at small offices, than they are at larger ports. At the smaller points, the officer numbers among his acquaintances many of the public he deals with. While he desires to live harmoniously with his fellows, he must as well enforce the rules and regulations and procedure required by the duties of his office. And so we find sometimes the Mrs. Jones, who has always thought the Customs officer such a nice man, has suffered a right about face, when the same "nice" man charged her duty on a Christmas present. And Mr. Smith who has crossed the international boundary for years. The Customs officer has always been so kind and considerate "but do you know, the last time I crossed, he searched my car." "Did he find anything?" "Yes." "Had you declared it?" "No, the very idea, I've known him for years."

But time heals—and eventually the Mrs. Joneses and the Mr. Smiths realize that the harassed Customs officer perhaps is not so bad after all, he is caught between conscientious purpose to serve his position, and a desire as well to remain a friend and a likeable citizen among

PLEASED WITH EXTENSION OF R. MAIL ROUTE ONE

Editor News:

Through the medium of your paper some of us who have benefitted by the recent extension of mail R. 1, I wish to thank all who in any way played a part in the gaining of the desired extension. Especially do we appreciate the untiring efforts of Mr. Kettle, who in no way derived any personal benefit from it; and to Mr. Spriggs, who has for the past few years worked so hard to bring about this extension. Dec. 6, 1937 MORE MAIL his fellows. That he does well, is the consensus of public opinion. Customs officers as a class have no desire to tolerate any of their colleagues who would use their position as a means of personal aggrandizement through undue officiousness neither do they look with favour on the officer who feels that to carry out his duty he must be married to his job, and hate everybody.

The large seaport lays claim to its romance in the ships that come to its shores. Many of these imports, however, find their way to the smaller interior ports. As to variety, well the writer has cleared such oddities as rattlesnakes (after a cursory examination). The small port officer finds variety indeed in the different matters that he must deal with daily. The handling of mail, express, freight, baggage, etc., all have their peculiar procedures. The scope of his activities, and his close contact with the public, provide romance and interest, and the knowledge he gains from his work makes him a valuable public servant."

A Hell of a Job

I was 18 when I first went into the mills, I had worked around artificial heat before; where the heat of a Kansas harvest field seemed like a cool breath in comparison. But the steel mills were hotter. A whole acre covered with hot iron. Always the heat waves dancing and jiggling before your eyes. Night or day it was just the same. Summer or winter.

This was in the days of the 12-hour shift. Six to six. Day or night. Seven days a week. The pay was good I thought: 22½ cents an hour, $18.90 a week.

The work was hard. And I got to appreciate the expression "hard as steel." If I bumped into a protruding billet it felt as though my hip was broken. And always overhead were the tons of steel. Being carried back and forth by the crane. A dozen billets to a load, each weighing a quarter of a ton. If they fell . . . if even one of them fell.

Then I learned to be a strander. Stranding on the eight-inch mill was considered the most dangerous job in the plant.

ing the tongs. Sometimes I would sit for half an hour, trying to screw up courage to go in and relieve a man. I guess it was a kind of game. I didn't want to admit that I was a coward. It took a quick eye and a quick hand, besides nerve. Only about one out of five men who tried to become stranders succeeded.

But Al, the roller, told me one night that I'd have to learn or quit coming in. If I got in a tight place, if the steel was coming too fast for me to handle in comfort, if I missed a bar or two, I always got out. This night I missed three in succession. It slowed the mill down and the other men were holding the bars, cursing and shouting at me. The steel was burning their hands. I was burning up. My hands were beginning to blister, the heat was so constant. I motioned to Gus, the strander I was relieving, to come in and take the tongs. I couldn't stand it any longer. But Al saw me.

"Stay there, damn you," he yelled. "If you're goin' to relieve a man, re-

Getting Ready for Fox Hunt

A group of hunters painting numbers on their dogs before the chase in which members of the Virginia Fox Hunters association participated recently near Petersburg. Matsqui, Mission Win in Hoop Tourney at Matsqui Mission and Matsqui recreational centres split honors in the basketball jamboree in Matsqui hall on Monday evening. Mission girls came out on top, beating Matsqui by a score of 26-10 and Matsqui boys finished first over Mission by a 27-12 score.

The Abbotsford teams were out in their first rounds, the girls losing to Mission 7-22 and the boys losing to Matsqui, 9-24. Rosedale also lost their games, girls 12, Matsqui 17; boys, 10, Mission 24.

lieve him. Stay there and keep your head."

Another bar came through just then and I missed it. By the time I got the tail end of the rolls another came through. I caught this one, bent it and got it in the rolls. The steel was coming fast. I was almost ready to drop, and the heat on my hands was driving me crazy. The rolls began to go black before my eyes. I was dizzy and my knees were wobbly. But I couldn't get out until Gus relived me. It seemed like an hour before he came. I suppose it was about five minutes. But I hadn't missed a bar in that time.

At last one night Al gave me a regular job. It was the night that George got burned.

George had his back to the rolls and was whipping out a finished rod. The next rod shot out and something went wrong. I think a guide had worked loose. Instead of remaining in the trough, the bar jumped the low walls and shot out at an angle. Some one yelled at George, but it was too late. The rod hit his foot. He fell and became entangled in it. Al shut off the power immediately and every one rushed up, each with a pair of tongs or shears to extricate George. He was screaming and the smell of burnt flesh was sickening. They had the steel away from him in a minute except from his foot. The sharp end of the rod, three-eighths of an inch in diameter, had pierced his foot, between the tendon and the ankle. Fifty feet of it had gone through and another fifty was behind. It couldn't be pulled out, through the tendon. He was badly burned on the arms, legs, hips and even across his back, where the red hot rod had looped around him. His foot, of course, was ruined.

* * *

The next night I was a regular millhand, and I kept the job most of that summer. Then I got mine. It was one of those hot sticky nights when everybody is depressed anyhow. And the mill was slow. About ten o'clock the roughers got hold of a billet that was a little cold. I waited, my eye on the guide, for it to come out. I could hear the rolls bang, the way they do when the steel is cold. And it came through. But not straight out, as it was supposed to. It came out with a jump curling straight toward my belly. I didn't have time to think. I couldn't catch it. But I got my tongs in the way and deflected it between my legs. It hit the left one and almost knocked me over. I grabbed the top of the rolls to keep from falling and the hot bar hit the other leg. I climbed up on the rolls and let the rest of it go by. It was a narrow squeak. If I hadn't knocked it down, that bar would have gone right through me the way the rod had gone through George's foot.

* * *

The doctor put something on the burns, scraped dirt and scale out of them and put me in the hospital. I would be all right, he said, if infection didn't set in. But I guess the hot steel had cauterized the cuts it had made. Anyhow I didn't get

WHAT HO!

—By—
RICHARD CONNELL

By Arrangement With Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

"It's not a question of price," said Ernest. "That's a fair enough offer considering that I started this business with nothing but a capital of twenty-nine dollars, my diploma from the MacGrudger College of Taxidermy, and six white mice. But, you see, Mr. Slocum, this is more than just a business to me. It is—"

Ernest blushed, "what you might call my life-work. Maybe you'll laugh at me, Mr. Slocum, when I tell you that the money I make here is really secondary to the pleasure I get out of doing jobs like this—"

He patted the mane of the horse Tartar.

"Of course," he appended, "I don't make very much money. Barely enough to live on, as a matter of fact."

"Ernie," said Mr. Slocum, sadly, "I'm afraid you'll never be a trader. Now, if somebody came to me and wanted to buy my business do you think I'd tell 'em I was dragging one foot in the red ink? No, sirree! I'd tell 'em I was making so much money I had to hire a man and boy to count it."

Ernest smiled.

"I guess I'm not much of a businessman," he admitted.

The shop bell tinkled.

"Excuse me," he said. "A customer, I hope."

He opened the door and permitted Mr. Slocum to pass into an atmosphere redolent with the perfume of parrots and poodles. A large, patently impatient lady was waiting at the counter. At first sight she looked like one of Ernest Bingley's more pretentious efforts in the field of taxidermy, for her ample, well cushioned form was swathed in the brown fur of that prolific but expensive little animal, the mink.

Ernest Bingley made a courtly bow.

"How do you do, Mrs. Wyncoop?" he said.

"Hello, Armina, how's tricks?" said Mr. Slocum.

She favored them both with a nod that was one-fifth of an inch from top to bottom, and hoary with frost.

"Wish I could stay and have a chat about old times, Armina," said Mr. Slocum, a look of malicious geniality crinkling his face, "but I got to go and sell some shoes to the folks who believe in patronizing home-town merchants. So long."

From Mrs. Wyncoop's arctic expression it was possible to glean the thought that if Mr. Slocum went to a most remote and torrid spot and remained there indefinitely it would be entirely satisfactory to her.

When the door had snapped at the rubber heels of the departing shoeist, Mrs. Wyncoop said, "Is he ready?"

"Indeed he is, Mrs. Wyncoop," said Ernest. "I shall be happy to have you inspect him. Will you kindly step into the studio?"

Mrs. Wyncoop unleashed a lorgnette and gazed upon the fruit of many weeks of painstaking work. She said nothing. She looked nothing. By not so much as the quiver of a chin did she signify approval, or disapproval. Ernest regarded her expectantly, nervously. Still she made no comment.

Finally Ernest faltered, "Well, do you like him?"

In a throaty alto Mrs. Wyncoop said, "There's a patch of hair on his—errrr—torso which needs smoothing."

"So sorry," said Ernest. He had ruffled the hair in scrambling off the horse. He smoothed the offending patch. He waited, but no word of encomium was forthcoming.

She replaced her lorgnette in its holster.

"Deliver him to The Pines immediately," she said, and turned to go.

"Excuse me, Mrs. Wyncoop," said Ernest. "I want to ask you something."

She expelled an icy monosyllable. "Well?"

"I was just wondering," began Ernest, beset by embarrassment, "if you would mind, that is, if you would be so good as to permit me to exhibit Tartar at the state fair next month—"

"Why, pray?"

"Well, you see," said Ernest, "I sort of thought I'd exhibit some of my work there. I've got an idea for an exhibit, a complete collection of all the birds and animals native to Iowa, mounted and arranged by me. There's a prize, you know, for the most interesting exhibit of Iowa products, and I thought I might have a chance to win it. I could use that hundred dollars, Mrs. Wyncoop. My collection is pretty complete, but it lacks a buzzard and a horse. I can get the buzzard easily enough, but horses are scarce—stuffed ones, I mean—and so—"

"You may not exhibit Tartar," said Mrs. Wyncoop. "I can assure you that Mr. Wyncoop will not permit you to. Good-day."

"But," protested Ernest, "he is my work—the best thing I've ever done—and if you'd loan him to me—just for that week—"

"You will be paid adequately for your work," said Mrs. Wyncoop, "when you deliver it to The Pines. But if you attempt to show our property, you will hear from our attorneys, I promise you."

"But, see here, Mrs. Wyncoop, I need—"

"Good day to you," she cut in, and strode out through the pet shop toward her waiting limousine.

"Oh, look out!" cried Ernest.

"You're an old witch," croaked a harsh voice.

Mrs. Wyncoop gave a sharp squeal of pain and terror.

As she passed his perch, a second hand parrot, an African gray, thrust out his horny beak and nipped her on the ear.

When she had gone, Ernest gave the parrot a peanut.

Then he returned to his studio and gave the roan coat of Tartar a final smoothing.

"Good-by old boy," he said.

He took an old olive drab army blanket from his bed and put it on the horse.

"Why," he asked aloud, "can't people be nicer?"

With the question unanswered, he went out into his pet shop, and, somewhat morosely, doled out to the tropical fish their rations of ant-eggs, patted and fed the assorted puppies, love-birds, white mice and guinea pigs, then locked up and started down Main Street to see the expressman about a truck for transporting Tartar to the ornate residence of Mr. Otis G. Wyncoop.

To go down Main Street was always a bit of an ordeal for Ernest Bingley. It meant running the gantlet of such social centres as the Daniel Boone Hook and Ladder Company, Munn's Drug Store, the New America House, and Doc Griffin's Pool Room.

With his head in the air Ernest sailed swiftly past the fire house, unobserved, for its inmates were playing pinocle while hopefully waiting for a good, big fire. He skirted the drug store without incident; but, in the door-way of the pool hall, lounged two young men-about-town, from whose nostrils poured cigarette smoke in as steady a stream as if wet hay were smoldering inside them. They wore short-brimmed, trigger-men hats, and their complexions were imperfect. On spying Ernest they removed their jaunty headgear and swept the ground in deep obeisances.

"Greetings and salutations, Sir Ernest," said one.

"Hi si, 'ow is 'is Lordship to-day?" said the other.

Ernest, with a struggle, summoned a smile to his face.

"Hello, Joe. Hello, Chuck," he said, affably.

He hurried on, trying not to keep step with the Rogue's March they whistled after him.

In the lobby of the New America House (Rooms $1 and up) two men were embedded in worn leather chairs, idly watching the passing pageant of Main Street through the broad plate-glass window.

One of them was Harry Lewis, on the road for a New York hat house, and he was yawning, gold-toothedly, at the idea of being stymied for the night in Bear Falls when he might have been taking out that red-headed cigar-stand girl in Davenport. He was an eagle-beaked, jockey-like man in a tight-pepper-green suit, and a Super-Wonder Derby (Pall Mall Style, $2.95, retail), and the stub of a cold cigar seemed a permanent part of his hairy hand. The other lobby-sitter was a native son, one of the Ten Thousand, and he had the silvery hair, the intellectual brow, the dignity and garb of a senator. His name was Samuel P. Cooke, and he had been out of work for twenty years, although his wife hadn't. Messrs. Lewis and Cooke were exchanging recipes for winning the favor of ladies met casually on railroad trains.

"What do you do for fun in this burg?" inquired Lewis.

"I'll show you," said Cooke. "Here comes the town clown."

"The punk in the comic hat?" asked Lewis.

"Yep."

"Why are those two petty-larceny sheiks bowing to him like that?"

"They're kidding him."

"Some fun," grunted Lewis. "Does that pass for kidding in this dorp?"

"Just wait," promised Cooke. "I'll call him in. All you got to do is follow my lead. Get it?"

"I get it," said Lewis, looking wise and metropolitan. "Who is the sap?"

"Bingley's his name, Ernest Bingley," Cooke told him.

"Cuckoo?"

"No. That is, not exactly. He's bright enough when it comes to books and stuff like that," said Cooke. "But he's full of nutty notions."

"Such as?"

"Well, he thinks he's somebody."

"Who?" queried Lewis. "Napoleon?"

"Oh, no. He's not that way," said Cooke. "Just thinks he's got ancestors."

"Well, ain't he?" asked Lewis.

"Sure. So have I," said Cooke. "Only I keep mine quiet. So do most of the folks around here. But Ernie Bingley's different. The boys don't like you to be different in this man's town."

"Yeah, I noticed everybody was pretty much alike around here," said Lewis.

As Ernest passed the hotel, Cooke rapped on the window with his imitation diamond ring, and beckoned Ernest to come in. Ernest hesitated, then started into the lobby.

"Now watch me kid the pants off him," whispered Cooke.

"How do you do, Mr. Cooke?" said Ernest Bingley. "Is there something I can do for you?"

"Why, yes, there is, Ernest, my boy," said Cooke, with exaggerated cordiality. "I want you to meet the Dook of Lumshire."

Outwitted The Enemy

Chinese Engine Driver Steals Munition Cars From Japanese

A story of the capture of a train-load of Japanese munitions by a Chinese railway engineer was circulated by the Chinese Central News Agency.

The agency's Chengchow correspondent said Chinese locomotive drivers were forced to operate munitions trains southward from Peiping on the Peiping-Hankow Railway line and that one of them, taking advantage of absence of Japanese guards from his train, drove the entire train into the Chinese lines at Chengting-fu.

Brown: "My wife thinks of nothing but motoring and golf. I'm getting tired of it."

Jones: "Well at least, she's in the fashion."

Brown: "Yes, but she's such a failure at it. In golf she hits nothing and in motoring she hits everything."

When People Felt Safer

British Prime Minister Longs For The Old Days

Prime Minister Chamberlain yearned for the "good old days" in addressing the Association of British Chambers of Commerce at Manchester.

"Everyone, I think—certainly not least His Majesty's ministers—must look back with envy on the good old days when Britain was an impregnable island and possessed the only fleet of consequence in the world, and when men, if they cast upward an inquiring glance at the sky, did so only to ascertain what were the weather prospects."

"I think that public speaking must have been easier in those days when every word was not examined with a microscope to find in it meanings invisible to the naked eye, and when a man might address his own countrymen without being accused of directing his utterances—and even his reticences—at some other nation."

New Geographical Data

Two Thousand Square Miles Added To The Map Of Canada

Four hundred and forty-five years after the discovery of the North American continent by Columbus, exploration of portion of its terrain is still continuing, revealing new geographical data and land formations to scientists.

Two young Englishmen, R. J. O. Bray and P. D. Baird, have returned from the North, reporting that 2,000 square miles have been added to the map of the Canadian Arctic through their explorations.

The explorers, two of a party of Englishmen who have been camped on Southampton Island in Hudson Bay for the past two years, came out on the Mission ship, Ste. Therese, in September after a year in the Arctic, but intend returning "down north" again as soon as possible. The party is sponsored by an English University and have no connection with Government survey parties, it was learned.

Mental Telepathy

May Some Day Make War Impossible Thinks Psychologist

Extra-sensory perception—some people's apparent ability at mental telepathy—may some day end all wars, Dr. Charles F. Potter, author and psychologist, said in New York.

Referring to recent experiments of Dr. J. B. Rhine at Duke University which indicated that most persons were able to "read" symbols on cards which they could not see, Dr. Potter told the First Humanist Society:

"Consider, for instance, the possibilities for international peace when the technique of extra-sensory perception is fully worked out."

"Trained telepathists will supplant the present spy system. Without leaving their own country a little group of gifted 'espers' will be able to discover the plans of the enemy's strategists and nullify those plans."

"Since the essence of success in war is secrecy, when secrecy is destroyed, war will be impossible."

Gave Up Large Estate

But Man Inherits Title Whether He Wants It Or Not

George Cecil Morris, 86, who "ran away from titles" 50 years ago, apparently has been caught by a baronetcy.

Whether he wants it or not, he becomes the head of an old and wealthy Welsh family as the heir to his nephew, Sir Tankerville Morris, who died a week ago in Wales.

Morris turned down the 3,000-acre estate and baronetcy which now falls to him.

"I don't want either," he declared. "I ran away from titles 50 years ago. I want to be left alone with my flowers."

But normally he will be the head of the family, though he need not use his title.

Placing The Blame

Mullingham was not great as a sportsman and he was out one day deer stalking in Scotland. He made a series of inexplicable misses, and, after failure at a very easy mark, he said to an attendant:

"Now, Donald, whose fault was it that time?"

Donald: "Well, the stag wasn't more than a hundred yards, and it's not my fault you missed him; and it wasn't the fault of the stag, for he stood still enough; and it's not the fault of the gun; for I ken weel it's a right good one; so I'll just leave it to you to think it over and find out whose fault it was!"

Canada's Doctors

Latest Statistics Show One To Every 1,034 Persons

Comparatively speaking, there are not so many doctors in Canada as there were years ago. That is, physicians and surgeons. At the beginning of the century there was one doctor for every 969 of the population. The proportion gradually decreased until the latest statistics show one in every 1,034. One reason vouchsafed is that the period of training has about doubled, making the course a long and an expensive one.

Although medical science has advanced like everything else, yet the lack of medical service in rural sections is one of the greatest drawbacks in the country to-day. The population has become more urban and less rural in general character and it is obvious that, with greater territory to cover and more time consumed in travel it takes more doctors to attend to the needs of the country than of the city. There is one doctor for every 700 or so people in the large cities, but only one for every 1,300 in the country.

In England and Wales there is only one doctor in 1,363 of the population and in France one in 1,355. The situation is different in two other very advanced social service countries. In the United States there is one medical man in 798, whereas in Australia there is one in 1,373. About ten per cent. of the Canadian doctors were born, though not necessarily educated, outside of Canada—five per cent. in the British Isles or other British countries and 2½ per cent. in the United States, according to the census branch of the Dominion bureau of statistics.—Brandon Sun.

Record For Horses

Barney and Jerry, a team of six-year-old Belgians, weighing 4,350 pounds, broke the world's horse-pulling record at Ohio State Fair, Columbus, Ohio, September 1, when they pulled the last load of 3,925 pounds the required distance of 27.5 feet. This is equivalent to hauling 27 tons of granite block pavement. The winners are owned by Burley Moyer of Greensfork, Ind. Their record displaces the 3,900-pound pull made by the famous Michigan team, Rock and Tom.

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said, so the census-taker put her down as "on relief."

Little Helps For This Week

The temple of God is holy, which temple you are. 1 Cor. 3:17.

Now shed Thy mighty influence abroad
On souls that would their Father's image bear;
Make us as holy temples of our God,
Where dwells forever calm, adoring prayer.

This temple is the church of God within every soul, the consecrated place of divine worship where alone we can worship God in spirit and in truth. When once we are grounded in this we will have learned to live unto God above time and place, and will always have a priest, a altar and a church with us. When God has all he should have of our hearts everything we do is a song of praise, and the common business of our lives is a conforming to His will on earth even as angels do it in heaven.

Aluminum Ships Possible

But Will Be Scouted Just As Iron Vessels Were

A hundred years ago the wise-acres said that iron ships would not float. That criticism was long ago consigned to the bilge. September 28 was the centenary of the first iron vessel registered at Lloyd's.

The new type had no easy passage. An iron steamship was successfully launched in 1821, but it was not until 1834, when another survived a storm which broke up wooden vessels, that it was taken at all seriously. Even then the Admiralty waited until 1860 before building ironclads.

Iron has served its time on the sea. To-day the majority of ships are built of steel. And now designers are thinking in terms of aluminum, a possibility that is bound to be scouted in some quarters. Ships evolve; human nature remains the same.—Overseas Daily Mail.

Basket-Making Demonstrated to Residents of Bradner

At a meeting in Bradner school last week, held under the auspices of the P.T.A. branch of the Community Club, the large audience were greatly interested in a talk on basketry by Mr. J. Rowley of Abbotsford, who also demonstrated the work. It was decided to form a basketry class and a meeting of those interested is being held this week.

Chief speaker of the evening was Mr. T. W. Hall, official trustee of the M.-S.-A. Educational Area, who gave an interesting outline of his work in different parts of British Columbia during the past thirty years. He also spoke on matters of educational interest in this area. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker.

Football

In yet another game, Abbotsford senior soccer team failed to gain any points, being defeated 3-1 by Excelsior eleven, Saturday on the Cambie St. grounds.

Excelsior's, the league's most highly-touted team, and having several of the city's best players, did all their scoring in the first twenty minutes. They continued to dominate the play in the first half, but after the cross-over, Abbotsford decided to take the upper hand. Keeping the city team penned up in their own half for most of the time, Abbotsford scored once when Blacklock found the net, after a nice play from Marriette to Ralston to Blacklock.

Marriette was unfortunately hurt early in the game, and took the outside right position, which he filled very nicely. Pattenden, playing at right back, played a stellar game, and with his partner Joe Wellingsford, kept the Excelsior forwards from any scoring chances in the second half. For perhaps the first time this season the locals' halves and forwards combined, and the result was noticeable, Excelsior being distinctly outplayed in the second half.

Abbotsford junior soccer team, looking very trim in their new suits, lost an exhibition game to Chilliwack on Sunday at the Jubilee grounds.

Expecting a junior team, the local juniors were surprised to meet a strong up-Valley squad, containing several Chilliwack all-stars. Abbotsford boys gave them a very good game, however, and were satisfied with their showing.

The Abbotsford senior team meet the smooth-working Kerrisdale eleven Sunday on Jubilee Grounds, at 2.30. Previous to this game, the juniors meet Macabees of Vancouver, kick-off at 1 p.m. The following juniors are asked to be on hand at the Legion, at 12.30: T. Irvine, P. Moran, W. Atkinson, B. McPhee, G. Kerr, H. Walker, D. Blacklock, D. Shellard, G. Grant, B. Wasterston, G. Pernosky. Reserves: L. Vanetta, J. McDonald, R. Forrest.
